Filipino American Psychology Forum
August 3, 2014
12 to 5 pm
Kona Kai Hotel, San Diego

This unique forum provides an opportunity for clinicians, educators, and other social service providers to be introduced and explore various themes that influence the mental health and well-being of Filipino American clients. Participants will acquire an overview of the history of research and clinical practice issues, as well as updates on colonial mentality, body image, and transnational parenting. Experts will discuss the role of colonial mentality, a form of internalized oppression, and microaggressions (e.g., everyday insults, slights, put downs, demeaning messages, and indignities) in shaping personality and behavior among Filipino Americans. Participants will learn about different types of racial and sexual orientation microaggressions and attain skills to deal effectively with them.
